Your horoscope at a glance

Your Ascendant is Scorpio; your natal Moon is in Taurus, in Rohini pada 3. The Ascendant sets the house sequence, while the Moon's position sets the birth star and Vimshottari starting balance. These are different reference points and are used separately throughout your reading.

The following chapters explain the birth chart first, then the longer Dasha periods, and finally the next three months of Gochara. The transit dates are anchored to this report's checking time; reopening or downloading the same report does not move that window.

Birth Panchanga and Dasha balance

Tithi measures the Sun-Moon separation; Nakshatra measures the Moon’s sidereal position. Nitya Yoga uses the sum of their longitudes, and Karana divides each Tithi into two. These values describe the birth instant. The traditional weekday changes at local sunrise, which can differ from the civil weekday for a birth before dawn.

Malayalam calendar and Kali day

The Malayalam date is the Kerala civil-calendar date corresponding to your birth instant. For a birth abroad, it may refer to a different civil date from the one at your birthplace. Kali day is shown using the stated civil-day counting convention; it is not an additional prediction.

Bhava boundaries and middles

This table uses Sripati: the four angular points mark house middles, the intervening arcs are divided into three, and the boundaries lie halfway between neighbouring middles. The earlier Rasi chart and its interpretations continue to use whole-sign houses. A planet can therefore occupy a different Bhava here without changing its Rasi.

Additional birth details

Chandra Avastha, Vela and Kriya locate the Moon within finer divisions of your birth star. The calculation here divides the star’s angular span into 12, 36 and 60 parts respectively. These are traditional lunar classifications, not measurements of health or a diagnosis.

Angaditya counts 16 stars from the Sun’s star to the Moon’s star, including both ends. Its body-part name is a traditional symbol.

Chandra Avastha	7 / 12
Chandra Vela	19 / 36
Chandra Kriya	31 / 60

Yogi and Avayogi

These calculated points are used in a separate traditional reading of support and effort. They are not additional planets. The Yogi point’s sign lord, called the Duplicate Yogi, is Jupiter. Interpret these roles alongside the planet’s actual house, condition and running period.

Chara Karakas

The eight-karaka method ranks the seven classical planets and Rahu by progress within their signs; Rahu is counted backwards. This gives a second set of signifiers for self, work, family and partnership. It complements the house-lord reading rather than replacing it.

Arudha Padas

Arudha describes how the matters of a house may appear publicly. AL is Arudha Lagna and UL is Upapada. This table uses the seven classical sign rulers and applies the first/seventh-sign correction. The projected sign can therefore differ from both the birth house and its lord's position.

Your birth weekday

Your traditional birth weekday is Thursday, whose planetary lord is Jupiter. This weekday follows the local sunrise rather than midnight.

Jupiter symbolism gives emphasis to learning, judgement and guidance. A useful expression is to share what you know while remaining willing to learn from a different experience.

In your chart, Jupiter occupies Virgo, house 11 from the Ascendant. Its actual placement and contacts, discussed in the later chapters, give the weekday theme its personal context. A shared weekday does not make two people's horoscopes the same.

Birth star, Pada and temperament

Your birth star is Rohini, pada 3. The following is a traditional temperament reading based on the Moon's birth position.

A pleasant way of speaking can coexist with firm personal views. You may prefer orderly surroundings and relationships in which people respect one another's boundaries. Your steadiness can be reassuring; leave room to reconsider a decision when new information deserves attention.

This pada places your Moon in Gemini Navamsa. Read alongside the birth-star theme, its symbolic emphasis is conversation and exploring alternatives; bring an open discussion to a clear decision.

Your Moon is in Taurus, its exaltation sign. This supplies a supporting sign condition for the lunar reading; it is not a complete assessment of the Moon's strength.

Your star's traditional associations

The Kerala tree tradition followed here associates Rohini with Njaval. Gana and Yoni use the same selected Nakshatra profile as your Porutham calculations.

The bird and element use a Panchapakshi tradition that considers both your star and whether the birth Moon was waxing or waning. This differs from lists assigning one permanent bird to each star. The table records the method used for your birth.

A meaningful way to honour this tradition is to protect trees, birds and animals without harming their habitats. Where suitable, support the care of your star tree or a local grove. Use a locally appropriate plant identification before planting; respect for nature extends beyond the species associated with your own star.

Association	For your birth star

Your Tithi and Karana

You were born in Krishna Paksha, on Dvitiya. This is the waning half of the lunar cycle. Your Tithi belongs to the Bhadra group, whose traditional name concerns wellbeing and stability.

The Bhadra reading gives importance to family regard, service and consideration for others. You may be attentive to whether your decisions offer security to the people around you. Helping is most sustainable when your responsibilities are clearly agreed.

Your birth Karana is Gara. Gara emphasises practical work, cultivation and household responsibility. Patient effort may suit you better than an impressive but uncertain shortcut. Break a large task into visible stages and check progress regularly.

These are traditional temperament themes, with practical suggestions for reflection. They are read together with your Ascendant, Moon and planetary relationships; they are not fixed judgements about your character.

Your Nitya Yoga

Your Nitya Yoga is Parigha. The name carries the sense of a barrier. It is selected from 27 divisions using the sum of the Sun's and Moon's sidereal longitudes at your birth.

Parigha links learning and speech with concern for the family's progress. You may enjoy explaining a subject or contributing to a shared project. Give conversation a clear purpose, and allow others equal space to speak.

This Panchanga Yoga is different from a planetary combination such as a Raja Yoga or a Mahapurusha Yoga. A favourable-sounding name does not promise success, and a difficult-sounding name does not make your birth inauspicious. The later yoga chapter evaluates the combinations actually present in your chart.

What your horoscope suggests about you

Your approach and temperament

You may take a firm approach when a matter seems important and resist being easily pushed aside. That resolve can become forceful when a discussion turns confrontational.

A useful approach: Leave room for a calm discussion before making your position final.

Chart basis: Scorpio Ascendant.

How you tend to respond

Patience and the ability to stay with a difficult task can be important strengths. You may be willing to help others even when doing so takes time and effort.

A useful approach: Use that persistence with clear priorities, so that helping others does not leave your own work unfinished.

Chart basis: natal Moon in Taurus.

Life areas in your horoscope

Self, direction and vitality

Personal plans may compete with obligations or periods of uncertainty. Taking on too much can make it harder to sustain the confident approach you would like to show.

Keep a small number of priorities and leave room to revise them. Confidence is more useful when it is matched by a pace you can maintain.

Chart basis: the lord of house 1, Mars, occupies house 9. Its debilitation sign adds a qualification; cancellation is not assumed.

Resources, speech and family

There are supporting indications for building a dependable base of resources and earning trust through measured speech. Family cooperation may help you preserve what you accumulate.

Discuss shared commitments before making promises. Separate essential household needs from optional spending and keep agreements clear.

Chart basis: the lord of house 2, Jupiter, occupies house 11. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Venus.

Effort, skills and communication

Repeated practice, communication and the courage to begin can become useful strengths. Cooperation with siblings or peers may improve when you take a practical, direct approach.

Choose one skill to develop consistently. Clarify what you mean before assuming that silence or a different opinion amounts to opposition.

Chart basis: the lord of house 3, Saturn, occupies house 3. Its own/exaltation sign is a supporting factor. The lord is placed in the house being examined. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Jupiter.

Home, education and property

A stable home, continued learning and gradual improvements to living conditions can become sources of satisfaction. Help from family or familiar surroundings may make these plans easier to pursue.

Make room for study and a settled home routine. For a property decision, check documents, affordability and practical needs separately from the horoscope.

Chart basis: the lord of house 4, Saturn, occupies house 3. Its own/exaltation sign is a supporting factor.

Learning, creativity and judgement

Learning, creative expression and considered judgement have supportive features. You may gain satisfaction from teaching, mentoring or encouraging a younger person without controlling their choices.

Use steady study and feedback rather than comparing progress with others. Give children or students encouragement that leaves room for their own interests.

Chart basis: the lord of house 5, Jupiter, occupies house 11. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Jupiter.

Routine, service and obligations

Competing demands and unfinished obligations may consume more attention than expected. Disagreements can become tiring when every issue is treated as a contest.

Break a difficult task into manageable steps and resolve small disagreements early. Keep a sustainable routine and seek qualified help for actual health or legal concerns.

Chart basis: the lord of house 6, Mars, occupies house 9. Its debilitation sign adds a qualification; cancellation is not assumed.

Partnership and cooperation

Cooperation, fair agreements and the ability to consider another viewpoint have supporting indications. A close relationship may work better when both people feel that their contribution is recognised.

Discuss expectations plainly and allow time for the other person's response. For joint work, write down responsibilities before a misunderstanding becomes personal.

Chart basis: the lord of house 7, Venus, occupies house 2. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Jupiter.

Change and shared responsibilities

Patience with complicated matters and willingness to investigate beneath the surface can be useful strengths. Shared responsibilities may become easier to manage when information is handled carefully.

Keep important records accessible and clarify who is responsible for a shared commitment. Allow time to understand a change before reacting to it.

Chart basis: the lord of house 8, Mercury, occupies house 1. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Venus.

Guidance, values and higher learning

Guidance, higher learning and contact with people who broaden your outlook may open useful possibilities. What feels like good fortune may work through preparation and timely advice.

Seek guidance that encourages understanding rather than dependence. Make practical preparation for study or travel even when the astrological indications are encouraging.

Chart basis: the lord of house 9, Moon, occupies house 7. Its own/exaltation sign is a supporting factor.

Career and public responsibilities

Progress at work may require you to manage delays, changing expectations or a mismatch between effort and recognition. It may take time to make your contribution visible.

Set clear expectations with colleagues and record completed work. Choose training and opportunities that fit your actual abilities and circumstances.

Chart basis: the lord of house 10, Sun, occupies house 12. Its debilitation sign adds a qualification; cancellation is not assumed. Its placement in a sixth, eighth or twelfth house adds competing demands.

Gains, networks and aspirations

Supportive networks and sustained effort may help a long-term aim become more attainable. Gains may depend as much on reliable cooperation as on individual initiative.

Invest time in dependable relationships and define what a realistic gain would mean for you. Avoid commitments made only to preserve appearances.

Chart basis: the lord of house 11, Mercury, occupies house 1. Supporting natural-benefic contact: Jupiter.

Expenditure, retreat and distance

Expenditure, rest, private work and distant connections belong to this house. Its presence does not by itself predict migration, confinement or loss.

Make room for rest while keeping important commitments visible. Check the practical cost of a distant opportunity before treating distance itself as an advantage.

Chart basis: the lord of house 12, Venus, occupies house 2.

Career fields to explore

The following fields arise from the Navamsa dispositor of the tenth-house lord, examined separately from Lagna, Moon and Sun. Repeated indicators are combined. These are modern examples of traditional occupational themes, to consider alongside your qualifications and interests.

Venus: Design, jewellery, textiles, attractive goods and customer-facing trade.

Mercury: Writing, accounting, analysis, communication and skilled craft.

No strongest indicator is declared without a complete strength assessment. These fields are possibilities to investigate, not a guaranteed appointment, income or instruction to change your job.

Planetary positional strength

The five positional components add to Sthana Bala. Dig Bala measures distance from the planet's weakest direction, and Naisargika Bala is its fixed traditional value. All figures are in Virupas; 60 Virupas equal one Rupa. These named components are shown separately and are not presented as a complete Shadbala total or a probability of success.

Shadbala · six sources of planetary strength

Shadbala brings together position, direction, time, motion, natural strength and aspects. The table shows each component, the total and the traditional comparison value in Virupas. A total above that comparison indicates greater capacity for the planet to express its own themes; it does not make every theme favourable. A strong planet can also make its difficult subjects more prominent.

The figures follow one stated calculation profile, including modern mean planetary elements for the motional component. They may differ from reports using another traditional convention. These new totals are not yet used to override the narrative until an independent full-chart comparison is completed.

Bhava Bala · house strength

Each house receives its ruler's strength, directional and aspect contributions, and the specified occupation and rising-sign adjustments. These values use the Bhava middles and boundaries shown earlier. Read a house's strength alongside its occupants, lordship and the running periods; the number alone does not predict an event.

Periods for important life plans

These tables examine a horizon of up to 30 years from the report date. They select periods whose Dasha or Bhukti lord owns or occupies the relevant houses. “Supporting factors” requires both lords to connect with the topic, at least one to occupy its own or exaltation sign, and none of the specified house restrictions. This is a transparent selection of factors, not a complete strength verdict. Exact starting and ending times use your report’s birth-location time zone.

Career and professional progress

Use these periods to review applications, responsibilities, further training and professional contacts. A supporting factor makes an effort worth considering; it does not promise an appointment or promotion. Check the current three-month transit reading before deciding when to act.

Marriage and partnership

These are periods in which the chart's partnership and family themes become active through the running lords. For an existing relationship, the same period may concern shared plans rather than a new marriage. Consent, compatibility and practical circumstances remain essential; the table is not a wedding-date selection.

Business and agreements

Use the active periods to review the people, responsibilities and resources involved in a business plan. Where caution is recorded, allow more room for negotiation and check commitments carefully. Astrology cannot establish whether a venture is viable or replace the information needed for a financial decision.

Home and property

These periods connect the running Dasha lords with home, land or the resources used for them. They can frame planning, repairs or a possible move. A purchase still requires an independent check of affordability, ownership and the property's actual condition.

Kuja Dosha: references and qualifications

Kuja Dosha is indicated under the selected checks, and at least one indication remains after the implemented exceptions. The table below identifies the reference points involved. This does not by itself decide whether a marriage is suitable.

Mars is checked from the Ascendant, Moon and Venus using the same rule profile as Porutham. The initial indication and the remaining indication after the implemented exceptions are shown separately. This individual assessment cannot establish marriage compatibility without the other person’s chart.

Reference	Mars house	Initial check	After exceptions
Lagna	9	Not indicated	Not remaining
Moon	3	Not indicated	Not remaining
Venus	8	Indicated	Remains

Rahu and Ketu · nodal configuration

Kala Sarpa configuration: not present under the selected definition. The seven classical planets are distributed across both sides of the Rahu-Ketu axis.

This is one named nodal configuration, not a blanket verdict on every Rahu/Ketu tradition. The partial-enclosure variant is not used. Its presence does not establish a curse, illness or inevitable failure; the rest of the chart and the running periods remain relevant.

Dasha, Bhukti and the years ahead

The table identifies the current and next major periods. The following explanations cover Bhuktis overlapping the next five model years. The separate 30-year table gives the longer schedule. Antara dates divide the current Bhukti from its original beginning. These are timing references, not promises of exact events or estimates of lifespan.

Your next Mahadasha

The next Mahadasha is Saturn. The reading below concerns its opening Bhukti and the natal placements of its lord. Later Bhuktis add their own influences; the same forecast should not be applied unchanged to the whole major period.

This is Saturn Mahadasha with Saturn Bhukti, its subperiod. The natal placement of Saturn makes personal effort, communication and short journeys a main area to examine during the Dasha. Both period lords occupy the same natal house, so this subject remains relevant in the subperiod.

Optional prayer and observance

These suggestions are for readers who wish to express their own faith during the current or coming period. They are optional devotional practices, not requirements for receiving a favourable result or proof that a dosha has been removed. Follow your family tradition where it differs.

The short invocation means a respectful salutation to the named planetary deity. Use clothing you already have if you enjoy the colour symbolism. No purchase, fixed donation amount, food restriction or compulsory number of repetitions is needed for these simple observances.

Jupiter · current Mahadasha

Included for your current Mahadasha. If you wish to follow a weekly observance, set aside a short time on Thursday for a simple prayer and reflection.

An optional act of service: Share knowledge patiently, or support a student within your means.

Selected yogas and planetary combinations

The five Mahapurusha formations are checked separately from the Ascendant and Moon. Kendra means houses 1, 4, 7 or 10. The table distinguishes an absent configuration from unavailable data; it is not a list of all possible yogas.

Yoga	Planet	From Lagna	From Moon
Ruchaka	Mars	Not present	Not present
Bhadra	Mercury	Not present	Not present
Hamsa	Jupiter	Not present	Not present

Kesari and Shakata checks

Kesari is checked through the angular relationship of Moon and Jupiter. Shakata is checked through the sixth, eighth or twelfth relationship of Moon from Jupiter, with the Moon-in-Kendra-from-Lagna exception applied. A recorded formation is distinct from its full strength or eventual result.

Further planetary combinations

Ubhayachari

The Ubhayachari formation is present: Jupiter in the twelfth sign from the Sun; Mercury in the second sign from the Sun. It highlights the way you support your decisions, express an opinion and respond when a position has to be defended.

Mercury, Jupiter or Venus participates, bringing the traditional emphasis toward considered speech, useful learning and cooperation. These qualities work best when an opinion is supported by preparation and a willingness to listen.

Parivartana · exchange of signs

No exchange of signs between two classical planetary rulers is present.

Neechabhanga · qualifying a debilitation

Sun occupies its debilitation sign. The selected angular-support condition is absent. Its themes may need more deliberate effort; this single test does not decide the outcome of the whole horoscope.

Mars occupies its debilitation sign. A selected Neechabhanga condition is present: Moon · house 7 · from Lagna; Moon · house 1 · from Moon. The sign lord or the ruler of the planet's exaltation sign supplies angular support. The earlier debilitation indication therefore needs qualification: difficulties may coexist with a route to recovery through the supporting planet's subjects.

Ashtakavarga

Each planetary column shows how many of the seven planets and the Ascendant contribute a favourable point to that sign under the selected traditional table. The last column adds the seven planetary scores. These are the unreduced Bhinna and Sarvashtakavarga values, before Trikona or Ekadhipatya reductions. A larger number represents more supporting contributions in this method; it is not a percentage chance of success or a standalone prediction.
